

Achieving innovation, diversity and sustainability by rewriting the panel process #rethinkyourlegal

As a senior legal or procurement leader in a business, you should be promoting and encouraging innovation, diversity and sustainability. These things are part of the legal and ethical framework within which businesses need to operate in order to achieve longer term success and to build enduring customer, staff and other stakeholder engagement.

In conjunction with the Centre for Legal Leadership, please join us for an exclusive interactive workshop session aimed at General Counsel, Heads of Legal and senior procurement professionals with responsibility for buying legal services to address this topic. This session aims to analyse the legal panel process and establish how suppliers, clients and procurement can collaborate to create a sustainable and diverse external team.

Speakers and workshop facilitators include:

Mo Zain Ajaz, Global Head of Legal Operational Excellence at National Grid

Daniel Sanchez-Garcia, Director of Global Procurement, Liberty Global

Sally-Ann James - General Counsel, Metro Bank

Bruce Macmillan, Director, RPC The Centre for Legal Leadership

Janvi Patel, Chairwoman, Halebury

Event timings

18:00-18:30 Registration and reception drinks

18:30-20:00 Interactive workshops hosted by one of above speakers

20:00 Drinks, food and networking

The format of the session will be a brief presentation followed by break out case study sessions,

Halebury

Flexible External In-House Lawyers

<https://www.halebury.com>

working with peers to discuss common issues and how to resolve. There will be drinks, canapés and opportunities for networking directly after, so hope you are able to stay for the evening. To book your place, please contact helen.burness@halebury.com.

#rethinkyourlegal